M7qWschC 1 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK -----x 2 3 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, 4 17 Cr. 548 (JMF) v. 5 JOSHUA ADAM SCHULTE, 6 Defendant. 1 (Case called) MR. LOCKARD: Good afternoon, your Honor. 2 Michael 3 Lockard for the government. 4 MR. SCHULTE: Josh Schulte, appearing pro se. 5 MS. SHROFF: Good afternoon, your Honor. Sabrina Shroff and Deborah Colson as standby counsel for Mr. Schulte, 6 7 who is seated to my left and to Ms. Colson's right. THE COURT: All right. Good afternoon, everyone. 8 9 Mr. Lockard, will Mr. Denton be joining us? 10 MR. LOCKARD: He will not be joining us today. 11 THE COURT: All right. 12 So everybody knows the events on our agenda, in 13 advance of this, I did receive a letter from Mr. Schulte, 14 indicating a variety of things, including that he wishes to 15 file a posttrial motion pro se but otherwise wishes to be represented by counsel going forward. 16 17 I also received a letter from Ms. Colson requesting to be relieved and proposing substitute counsel. 18 I think we should take up the question of the 19 20 defendant's representation first, since it does have bearing on 21 various other things that we need to deal with and decide 22 today. 23 As I said, Mr. Schulte states in his July 25 letter, 24 ECF No. 885, that he wishes to proceed pro se with respect to 25 his Rule 29 motion but otherwise be represented by counsel. I can't say that I've researched whether that sort of hybrid representation is proper, and my guess is that I would be on firm ground saying no, that he's either pro se or not pro se, and leaving it at that. But that being said, there may be an argument for letting Mr. Schulte sort of wrap up his pro se representation with respect to the merits of the charges that were just tried and otherwise provide him with counsel.

Mr. Lockard, do you have a view?

MR. LOCKARD: No. I think the options the Court laid out are correct. I don't think it would be appropriate for Mr. Schulte to be both represented and pro se with respect to a particular set of motions, like the Rule 29 motion. But I think if the Court were inclined to allow him to file his trial-related motions where he was pro se in a pro se capacity, I think the Court could do that, or I think the Court also could say --

THE COURT: Do you want to use the podium? I think Ms. Shroff seems to be having trouble hearing you.

MR. LOCKARD: Sure.

20 THE COURT: And that microphone seems to be giving me 21 trouble.

MR. LOCKARD: Is that better? THE COURT: Yes. MR. LOCKARD: I'll do a very brief recap. I think the Court certainly should not permit

Mr. Schulte to be both pro se and represented with respect to a set of Rule 29 motions, but if the Court were inclined to allow Mr. Schulte to file his trial-related motions from the trial where he was pro se in a pro se capacity and allow him to revoke his waiver of his right to counsel with respect to sentencing and other posttrial matters, I think the Court would have that discretion.

I think the Court would also have the discretion to say you're pro se or not pro se and leave it at that. But I don't think the government has a view one way or the other.

THE COURT: All right.

Ms. Shroff or Ms. Colson, do you wish to be heard on this?

Mr. Schulte, I think I'm inclined to grant your request and allow you to proceed as you propose. Again, it's a little bit unusual, and I'm sure I would have authority to do otherwise, but I'm also guessing that I have discretion to do as you propose. So for the reasons I stated, I'm inclined to grant it. In light of that, you don't have necessarily need to say anything, but anything you wish to say?

MR. SCHULTE: No. Thank you.

22 THE COURT: Ms. Shroff, are you prepared to proceed 23 with those understandings and terms?

MS. SHROFF: That's fine, your Honor.

I did just want to just point out to the Court that I have and we had a call with the government in which I outlined my trial schedule for the next several months. So I wanted the Court to know of that schedule.

THE COURT: All right. I understand. And since there's no trial date yet, I'll take that into account when we set a trial date. But I don't think that's a reason to deny the request, and given your relationship with Mr. Schulte, your familiarity with the case, I think, certainly there are many good reasons for you to be the person to take things over if I'm going to allow him to proceed with counsel.

In light of that, I'll grant the request.

Let me just confirm, Mr. Schulte. I'm not sure that there is a standard allocution, if you will, for a reverse Faretta, to go back to having counsel. But to the extent that you were previously exercising your Sixth Amendment right to represent yourself, I think it makes sense to make sure that you are knowingly and voluntarily revoking that and making a voluntary and knowing decision to proceed with counsel going forward, with the exception of the Rule 29 motion, which I will permit you to handle on a pro se basis.

No. 1, do you understand that you do have the right, as you exercised it in the most recent trial, to represent yourself going forward?

Do you understand that?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, I do.

THE COURT: Do you understand you also do have the 1 2 right to counsel, and if you cannot afford to pay the cost of 3 counsel, counsel would be appointed to represent you free of 4 cost? 5 Do you understand that? 6 THE DEFENDANT: Yes, I do. 7 THE COURT: All right. Have you discussed whether to proceed pro se or with 8 9 counsel with standby counsel; is that something you've 10 discussed with them? 11 THE DEFENDANT: Yes, I did. 12 THE COURT: And is it your decision to essentially 13 revoke your decision to proceed pro se and, with the exception 14 of the Rule 29 motion, to proceed with counsel going forward? 15 THE DEFENDANT: Yes, it is. 16 THE COURT: All right. 17 And do you understand that I'm not saying that if you were to change your mind down the line, that I would deny an 18 application to go back to pro se status, but I might, which is 19 20 to say you don't have the right to just sort of willy-nilly go 21 back and forth? And I certainly wouldn't grant an application 22 if it would delay the proceedings unduly. 23 Do you understand that? 24 THE DEFENDANT: Yes, I do. 25 I just wanted to note one thing, that I think that my initial Faretta waiver was specific just to this trial. So I'm 1 not really sure that it's going back and forth. But I don't 2 3 anticipate going back for this part. 4 THE COURT: All right. Understood. 5 In any event, whether it was specific to this past 6 trial or more general, certainly I'm not going to let you make 7 or do anything that would affect our schedule in a material way and delay trial once we set a trial. 8 9 Do you understand that?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, I do.

THE COURT: OK.

Mr. Lockard, do you think there are any additional questions that I should ask of Mr. Schulte?

MR. LOCKARD: No, your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

Mr. Schulte, just for the sake of the record, in the last 48 hours, have you had any drugs, medicine, pills, or had any alcohol?

motions, appoint Ms. Shroff and perhaps Ms. Colson -- we'll discuss that next -- going forward with respect to all other matters.

That brings me to Ms. Colson's application to be relieved as counsel. I think we can and should separate that request from the request to appoint Mr. Stern in her place. As to the request to be relieved, the local rules do require that counsel make a showing of satisfactory reasons to withdraw.

9 Ms. Colson, you offered to provide those reasons. I'm 10 happy to do that at sidebar if you want to take care of it now, 11 or if you can do it in open court.

What are your thoughts?

MS. COLSON: I prefer to do it at sidebar, your Honor. THE COURT: OK.

Any objection from anyone to that?

MR. LOCKARD: No, your Honor.

THE COURT: Why don't counsel approach.

18 And Mr. Schulte, you're welcome to join, or if you19 wish, I can just hear from Ms. Colson at sidebar.

(Defendant conferred with standby counsel)

21THE DEFENDANT: Yes. I don't mind if you speak with22her directly.

THE COURT: Mr. Lockard, do you wish to join? I'm also happy to hear from Ms. Colson privately if she thinks there's a basis to do that.

1	MR. LOCKARD: If Ms. Colson thinks it's more
2	appropriate to do it ex parte, we don't have an objection.

THE COURT: Thank you, Ms. Colson, for making more of a record on that.

I am going to grant Ms. Colson's request. I think it is justified under the circumstances, so I will grant her request to withdraw as counsel. As I said, the request to appoint Mr. Stern is a separate matter, and on that, I have a few thoughts.

One is my question, and, Ms. Shroff, I guess this is best directed to you, which is, is it necessary to appoint him? It seems to me that trial, second or third trial in this case is not going to be quite as complicated as the last trial was. I recognize it's not completely a run-of-the-mill child pornography or copyright case, but that being said, nor is it an espionage case, and I wonder whether it's necessary to have two CJA lawyers, or alternatively, if assistance is appropriate, if it might make more sense to allow you to find and ask for associate counsel to be appointed.

What's your thoughts on that?

MS. SHROFF: Your Honor, I would appreciate associate counsel. Mr. Stern is very well qualified, and considering that he is -- well, much smarter than me and somebody that would help me out, I'm happy to take the associate rate and let him have the higher rate. It's fine. I don't have -- it's fine, if the Court would allow it. I would flip, if it's OK with the Court, I don't mind doing it that way. So it would be fair for the budget if the associate counsel would go to me rather than Mr. Stern, then I would be fine with that.

THE COURT: OK. I will take that under advisement, but the broader concern I have is that the typical way that this is done is that -- I mean in a typical case, without the need for cleared counsel, it would just go to whoever is on duty, and in that sense, the rules don't permit counsel -well, don't really permit judges, let alone counsel, to handpick who their successors are. This is not the usual case in the sense that I think it does require someone with clearance, but I also imagine that Mr. Stern isn't the only person who falls in that category. I guess the question I have is why Mr. Stern as opposed to doing it in some more neutral fashion and figuring out who the next cleared counsel is, or something of that nature.

MS. SHROFF: Your Honor, Mr. Stern was proposed as a counsel to me. He actually happens to be my mentor for capital work, so I didn't have any reason to say no. I do know that initially, when this case was in flux, we had generally spoken to Mr. Stern. At that time he had sort of known about the case and we talked about the case with him, but his trial schedule hadn't worked, and then we had other counsel join the team.

I fully understand the Court's position, and I want to be clear, I -- to use an American expression -- don't have a dog in the fight, but whatever you want to do is fine. And as I said, I would be happy to take the associate rate.

I just want to tell the Court that also to the extent it matters for the CJA budget, for the year from April of 2021 until April of 2022, I worked on Mr. Schulte's case but would not be submitting a voucher for any part of that time, because I was with the Federal Defenders office in D.C. So I'm not allowed to bill on the case, and I wouldn't bill CJA for that time period. I did do my work, though. So if you don't see billing, that doesn't mean I didn't work. I did work, but I just --

THE COURT: I know full well and have no doubt on that score.

Ms. Colson, since it sounded from your letter that you'd spoken to Mr. Stern, do you wish to be heard on that particular part of the application?

MS. COLSON: I have, and just to be clear, this was my idea and not Ms. Shroff's. I thought since I was the one who made an application to withdraw --

THE COURT: Would you bring the microphone a little closer.

MS. COLSON: Just to be clear, your Honor, Mr. Stern was my idea. It was not Ms. Shroff's. As she said, she does not have a dog in this fight. But I proposed Mr. Stern because, since I was the one making application to withdraw, I thought I would try to make it as easy for the Court as possible, knowing that the Court was likely to need somebody with security clearance. I did talk to Mr. Stern about it. He is willing and eager to assist Ms. Shroff with this matter should the Court appoint him. But again, it was merely a suggestion to try to make things easier for the Court.

THE COURT: All right. And perhaps you know, Ms. Colson, my understanding and impression is that Mr. Stern has a capital trial scheduled for later this year. Is that wrong?

MS. COLSON: That is my understanding as well. Ι believe that his trial schedule frees up in January. I know from Ms. Shroff that she has other trials scheduled this fall as well, so their schedules are similar in that regard.

THE COURT: All right. But I guess my concern is less scheduling trial in this matter than whether Mr. Stern would be able to provide whatever assistance would be needed in connection with motion practice or the like over the course of the fall. But all right.

Well, tell you what. Again, I have granted Ms. Colson's application to withdraw. I think I will take under advisement the request to appoint Mr. Stern and speak with the 23 powers that be about what the logistics are on that score and 24 decide what the appropriate course is, whether it's to pick someone in a more neutral fashion or pick Mr. Stern, and what the appropriate budget would be, mindful of what Ms. Shroff has offered on that front. So I'll reserve judgment on that. I anticipate that I will appoint someone else. Who that is remains to be seen, and also, the trial date that we set may have some bearing on that. So I'll get back to you on that.

Next is Mr. Schulte's request for an extension of his deadline to file Rule 29 motion and Rule 33 motions to September 23. It's not clear to me why that much time is needed, but Mr. Schulte, do you wish to be heard on that? Do you want to explain?

MR. SCHULTE: Yes. I think it was, some of it was delays that were anticipated with respect to counsel, standby counsel, that I wanted to make sure that I got as much assistance from standby counsel as possible to those motions, to this motion, which I provided to them for review. And due to their schedules, it just seemed -- that was essentially the absolute latest. I actually hope to file it before that time, but just looking at their schedules and other potential issues, I just wanted to set a date as -- that wouldn't basically have any conflicts.

THE COURT: OK.

Mr. Lockard.

23 MR. LOCKARD: I don't think we have a particularly 24 strong view on it. I think we would want not necessarily the 25 same amount of time but reflective amount of time to respond to the motions.

I think we would also just raise the issue of setting a page limitation on the filings.

THE COURT: All right. As I said, I think it's probably a bit of a generous schedule, but I'll grant Mr. Schulte until September 23 to file his motion. I'll set the page limit at 40 pages. If that proves to be inadequate, I obviously don't know how many issues you plan to raise or how much space you'll need for them, and you certainly know how to request additional pages.

I'll give the government until October 24 to file its response, also not to exceed 40 pages. And I'll give Mr. Schulte until, let's say, November 14 to file his reply, not to exceed 20 pages.

And again, if anyone needs additional pages, you can request it. I'm unlikely to grant any request for more time given how generous that schedule is, but obviously, if you have a request on that score, I will take it under advisement and consider it.

All right. With that, I guess before we turn to trial on the severed counts and what's needed in connection with that, Mr. Schulte adverted to counsel making a request to proceed directly to sentencing. I will say it seems unwarranted given the briefing schedule that I just set on Rule 29 and Rule 33 motions, since Mr. Schulte hasn't been heard on that and any motion hasn't been ruled upon; putting aside whether I should wait for the outcome of a third trial, it seems premature to proceed with sentencing. But do you wish to be heard, Ms. Shroff?

MS. SHROFF: I think the Court is right that it would be premature given that the briefing on the Rule 29 and Rule 33 is yet to come, and that would impact on sentencing, especially if it impacts the counts of conviction. So I think we would hold that request in abeyance until the Court hears argument on the Rule 29 and 33.

THE COURT: All right. I will do that. I would say the default is going to be that I will await the outcome of the trial on the remaining charges to proceed with sentencing. If there's an application to advance it after I resolve the Rule 29, then I will take that under consideration. But bottom line is unless and until I say otherwise, we will wait until all charges are resolved; that is to say, certainly I will entertain any application to do it sooner than that, but I'm not going to do it before the Rule 29 is resolved, at a minimum.

All right. With that, let's turn to trial on the remaining counts. First, I just want to make sure we're all on 23 the same page.

24 Mr. Lockard, I take it we're talking about Counts 25 Twelve through Fifteen in the S2 indictment; those are the counts that remain to be tried. Is that correct?

MR. LOCKARD: I believe that's correct, your Honor.

THE COURT: OK. How long do you think trial of those counts would take?

MR. LOCKARD: I would, for planning purposes, predict a two-week trial. It may well be shorter, but for planning purposes, I would say two weeks.

THE COURT: All right. And do you have a view on how much, if any, CIPA litigation is likely to be needed in connection with a trial of those counts? I know Mr. Schulte, in his June 2 letter, ECF 841, had indicated his view that there would be a substantial amount of CIPA litigation required. I will confess to skepticism of some of the reasons that he states, but obviously, there's no application pending, so it's hard to say more than that.

MR. LOCKARD: It's hard for me to say if CIPA litigation is likely. It seems to me that it is probably not appropriate, but the defendant will file what he files or his counsel; since he is represented in the CP trial, counsel will file what counsel files.

THE COURT: All right. But I guess the point is it seems like we do need to allow for it; in case they believe that there's a basis for Section 5 notice and the need for classified evidence at trial, I think we need to build that in to the calendar. Do you agree with that?

THE COURT: All right. And have you and Ms. Shroff discussed a trial date, given, No. 1, context and, No. 2, the need to build in time for regular motion practice and CIPA motion practice?

MR. LOCKARD: We've discussed it, your Honor. We have not come to ground on it, and I think Ms. Shroff has indicated that based on her trial schedules, she is essentially unavailable for trial for a period of somewhere between 12 to 18 months. Ms. Shroff can provide more details to the Court and a more accurate estimate to the Court of that timeline than I can today, but given that, I think we did not get into what a pretrial briefing schedule would look like until we had some more clarity on the Court's view about the appropriate trial date.

THE COURT: OK.

Ms. Shroff, that was a little longer than I was anticipating hearing, but tell me what the situation is.

20 MS. SHROFF: Your Honor, would the Court like to hear 21 my trial schedule?

THE COURT: Sure.

MS. SHROFF: I have a trial starting on -- you told me that I (inaudible) Sunday, which is October 30, that is October 31, whatever the day right before November is, that's my trial before Judge Allyne Ross in the Eastern District of New York. It is a two-defendant case, involving the kidnapping of Michael Scott Moore, and that prosecutor on the case is also Mr. Denton. Even though it's a Southern District case, it's being tried in the Eastern District, and we anticipate a jury questionnaire and we believe that's a three- to four-week trial.

After that, and in early February, Ms. Colson and I have a trial before Judge Liman, which is United States v. Cole Bridges. Subsequent to that, I have a trial. I think that that schedule, actually, is in flux. I am trying to get out of the trial group one, but that case is before Judge Caproni.

THE COURT: Which is when?

MS. SHROFF: I'm stuck in an April trial group, but I honestly want to tell the Court that by Friday or by next week, Monday, she will let me know. She should rule on whether or not we can be out of trial group No. 1.

I intend to be on trial in United States v. Manaf in June. That defendant has been in custody for almost three and a half years. That case is before Judge Crotty. And that would take me to, I think, end of June.

And after that, I would be free to try Mr. Schulte. THE COURT: And after that being how long after June? MS. SHROFF: I think it's a three-week trial. But to be honest with your Honor, I need an expert for this case. The expert that we had contacted before on the child pornography case, I have not been able to get a hold of him and get his schedule. So my greater concern would be his availability, and of course, we haven't had any opportunity to consult with him.

So I know this Court has a very firm preference for setting the trial date now, but do you think we could have some time to figure out who the experts will be and get their schedules in line and write to the Court or come back and do the Rule 29 motions, as that might also give the Court a little bit more clarity on my own trial schedule?

The problem right now, as this Court knows, is that since the pandemic has lifted and everybody's back into the swing of trial, everybody's in a race to get everybody tried, and I'm just not sure how this will all shake out, especially the trial before Judge Caproni.

THE COURT: OK. I hear you, but I also think that probably cuts in favor of scheduling a trial sooner rather than later so that my trial date is on your calendar and your dance card doesn't fill up even more. I recognize it doesn't sound like there's any chance of a trial any time soon, given your existing schedule. And although I can't say I'm happy about that, it is what it is. My inclination would be to set a trial for either mid to late summer or early fall of next year, assuming that, given how much time there is between now and then, you'll be able to find an expert, gives you plenty of

6	MS. SHROFF: OK.

9	Mr. Lockard, any objection to that?
10	MR. LOCKARD: The government will be available.
11	THE COURT: Ms. Shroff.
12	MS. SHROFF: That's fine, your Honor.
13	THE COURT: Give me one second.
14	Yes, Mr. Lockard.
15	MR. LOCKARD: One thought that does occur to me is if
16	a second CJA attorney is going to be appointed to assist both
17	with posttrial issues in the espionage case and with the CP
18	trial, I don't know if that allows additional flexibility in
19	scheduling a trial in advance of September, but it might. So I
20	thought that I would at least raise the issue.
21	THE COURT: Well, I don't think it does in the sense
22	that unless Ms. Shroff were off the case, but that's not in
23	terms of adding a counsel. It wasn't to replace Ms. Shroff; it
24	was to replace Ms. Colson. So I don't think it really does.
25	Give me one second. I'm just looking at the calendar for a moment.

All right. I will set it down for September 11, 2023. That is definitely well beyond what I had planned to do, but in the interest of ensuring continuity of counsel and that Ms. Shroff can do it, I will put it out that far. I guess it probably is obvious to counsel, but there are some Jewish holidays that might fall within the trial and we won't be sitting on those dates to give you a heads-up, but we'll cover that.

More importantly, everybody should understand that is a firm date; that is to say, unless something in the nature of a pandemic comes along, that unless I hear from you in the next few days that that is not feasible for one reason or another --because of your witnesses or what have you -- you should treat that as a firm date and assume that it is not going to move. That means if there's any issue relating to discovery, relating to counsel, relating to anything, it is incumbent upon you to raise it sooner rather than later because the closer we get to that trial date the more likely it is I would deny any application that would affect our ability to begin trial at that time.

I think you all understand that when I say that, let me just confirm that everybody does.

Mr. Lockard.

MR. LOCKARD: Yes, we understand, your Honor.

THE COURT: Ms. Shroff.

MS. SHROFF: I do understand, your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Schulte.

THE DEFENDANT: Yes.

THE COURT: All right. I think what I will do is ask counsel -- and if you want to wait until I resolve the question of cocounsel, you may, but I will ask counsel to confer with one another and propose a pretrial schedule, building in a deadline for ordinary motions as well as any deadlines for CIPA litigation. You did it with respect to the last trial, so you understand the parameters as well as I do, if not better.

So why don't you confer with one another and propose a schedule. Given how much time we have between now and the trial date, I would say build in more time in advance to resolve things earlier than they were resolved this past go-round, since there were some lingering issues, and I would rather have this thing trial ready several months in advance than go down to the wire.

In that regard, I would build in extra time to allow for any sort of delays or issues that may prove more complicated than anticipated, but I'll leave it to you in the first instance to make a proposal.

Why don't I give you a deadline to submit a proposed schedule. I'll give you until, let's say, August 17. Does that work? And assume that I will resolve the question of counsel well before then. 1 2 Mr. Lockard. 3 MR. LOCKARD: I think that should work, your Honor. 4 THE COURT: Ms. Shroff. 5 MS. SHROFF: That should be fine, your Honor. 6 THE COURT: All right. And then the last item on my 7 agenda is the question of SCIF access going forward. There are two issues there. 8 9 One is the schedule. 10 Mr. Schulte, in his letter, requests SCIF access once 11 a week in connection with preparing for the child pornography charges. I'm not sure. That strikes me as a little more than 12 13 necessary, particularly if we're talking about a trial more 14 than a year out, and I wonder if we can either postpone this 15 until Ms. Shroff has a better sense of the needs here or 16 otherwise. 17 The second is I have been told that -- I mean real estate is obviously precious, being in Manhattan and what have 18 you. I think the SCIF on the ninth floor has been dedicated to 19 20 Mr. Schulte for a very long time, and it sounds like if that 21 can be freed up for other cases, that would be very much in the 22 interests of the CISO and the system and those other cases. So 23 in that regard, query whether, for purposes of the child pornography charges and the copyright charges, obviously, it's 24 25 necessary to dedicate the entirety of the SCIF or if

Mr. Schulte and counsel can share the SCIF with other parties 1 and we could proceed in that manner. 2 3 Anyone have thoughts on that? 4 Mr. Lockard. 5 MR. LOCKARD: Yes, your Honor. 6 So, actually, in our view, we don't expect that the 7 defendant is going to require SCIF access in order to review child pornography-related discovery. Throughout the trial 8 9 preparation period for the espionage trial, the defendant's 10 home computer, which is where the CP materials were found, was provided to him in the SCIF but not because it contained 11 classified material, but because, No. 1, he needed access to 12 13 the home computer because it was relevant to the espionage 14 charges, and No. 2, because we were able to provide it to him 15 in the SCIF in a way that complied with the Adam Walsh protections for providing that material, and it was both a 16 17 secure and convenient way of doing it for all the parties. That is not how it is done in any other case, and it 18 is not how the government expects to make that material 19 20 available going forward, especially given the fact that Mr. Schulte is represented in connection with the CP trial. 21 In 22 the ordinary course and in every other case, those materials 23 are maintained by the FBI. Counsel and experts are able to 24 visit FBI space and review the materials there in an 25 environment that complies with the required protections. Ιf the defendant, which is rare, but if the defendant personally needs access to that material, then he can have access to it by scheduling essentially a production either through the U.S. Attorney's Office or to the courthouse, and we can make it available there. But we don't expect that it's going to be made available in the SCIF going forward.

THE COURT: OK. I take it from -- again, Mr. Schulte's June 2 letter, I think it was, and again, I'm skeptical of some of the arguments, he's making a suggestion of why classified information would be necessary in the trial on these charges, but there may well be insofar as the home computer allegedly was used in connection with the espionage charges and may have aspects of it that were classified or are classified. Are you suggesting that that is not the case?

15 MR. LOCKARD: I believe there was a very limited amount of classified material on his home electronics. I believe it was on the home server, not on the home desktop, in 17 other words, a different computer from where the child 19 pornography materials were found. So again, I think there's no classification issue with respect to that computer, and it was made available in the SCIF because that was the most secure and 22 convenient way to do it in the context of preparing for a trial 23 that did involve a lot of classified discovery.

THE COURT: All right.

Mr. Schulte, it's actually Ms. Shroff who is going to speak on your behalf because you are now represented with respect to these charges.

Ms. Shroff, I'll hear from you, but I guess my inclination is to basically let you and the government discuss this and see if you can sort it out and perhaps come to an understanding. That understanding is likely to be much less access to the SCIF than certainly you had before and perhaps want now, especially given that we're talking about a trial 14 months out. But be that as it may, I think letting you discuss it in the first instance, letting you explain what the reasons are that Mr. Schulte would need SCIF access would be to the government in the first instance and then to me if that would be appropriate, it might make sense to just let the process run its course a little bit, given that there's no urgency here.

MS. SHROFF: I think that's fine, your Honor. I think I can speak to the government and try and see if we can come to some sort of arrangement. I think Mr. Lockard may not be quite correct, but I don't want to take up your time. I'm happy to confer with the government, and should there be a problem, we can come back to the Court.

Maybe Mr. Schulte doesn't need the SCIF once every 22 week. Maybe we might be able to, at least in the initial 23 stages, have it once every two or three weeks and see if we can 24 go from there. I'm happy to undertake, I would call it the 25 mighty job of having to clean out the SCIF that is on nine, and I will try and do so as soon as possible.

THE COURT: All right. I appreciate that. The CISO says it might require cleaning, if not a wrecking crew, but if you can, I'm sure they'd be grateful to have its use for other cases. It doesn't sound like that space would be necessary on a regular basis and certainly that it could be shared.

MS. SHROFF: I'm going to require the full rate for that one.

THE COURT: You'll require combat pay, sounds like.

Here's what I will do. Unless there's a need for SCIF access before then, why don't you address this in the August 17 submission with the proposed schedule. Include in that your respective views -- unless there's agreement, your respective views on how much SCIF access is needed. I would note that I don't know if Mr. Schulte needs SCIF access with respect to his pro se preparation of the Rule 29 and Rule 33 motions, but that's something that you ought to consider and, I guess, absorb into that, if he needs access before August 17, some combination of Mr. Schulte's pertaining to the matter on which he's representing himself, or, Ms. Shroff, if you want to, just as a courtesy, speak on his behalf if you have an application on that score, I'll certainly entertain it. I guess bottom line is unless he needs SCIF access before August 17, why don't you plan to address the needs, if any, in that submission. (Standby counsel conferred with defendant)

MS. SHROFF: Your Honor, I don't think he needs SCIF access until August, but would it be all right if the need be for me to confer with the marshals service and write to the Court if that need does occur.

THE COURT: Yes. What I'm saying is include in your August 17 submission what the proposal is going forward. One option also is that it's not going to be a constant between now and September of next year. It could be that it's this for the next few months or this and then it increases, whatever the needs may be; I'm certainly open to it. And if the government and you, Ms. Shroff, disagree, you can give me your respective positions and I will resolve the issue. If there's a need for SCIF access before August 17, you know how and where to find me. Just make an application and I will take it under advisement.

All right. I don't have anything else on my agenda other than speedy trial.

Before I turn to that, Mr. Lockard, anything else that you think we should discuss today?

20 MR. LOCKARD: No. That's the only thing on my list, 21 your Honor.

22 THE COURT: Is there an application for exclusion of 23 time?

MR. LOCKARD: There is, your Honor.

Given the need for the parties to address the pretrial briefing matters as well as prepare for trial, and in light of the other trial calendar of the defendant's counsel, the government requests the exclusion of time until September 11, 2023, as outweighing the interests of the defendant and the public in a speedy trial.

> THE COURT: Any objection, Ms. Shroff? MS. SHROFF: No. No, your Honor. THE COURT: All right.

I will exclude time between today and September 11, 2023. I find that the ends served by excluding that time outweigh the interests of the defendant and the public in a speedy trial, primarily to ensure continuity of renewed counsel, Ms. Shroff, but also given the many open issues that will need to be resolved, the need to set a motion schedule and CIPA schedule and the need for the defendant and counsel to review discovery and consider and prepare any motions that they wish to bring of that sort or any other sort, and beyond that, the need to prepare for any trial that will, I assume, not be as complicated as the last one but probably more complicated than your average child pornography trial.

Anything else, Ms. Shroff?

MS. SHROFF: No. Thank you, your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Schulte, to the extent you continue to represent yourself in some capacity, anything else from you?
MR. SCHULTE: No.
